2013 MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS

The residents of Pompano Beach went to the polls on March 12th for the Municipal Election and it was clear from the results that residents wanted to keep Mayor Lamar Fisher, Commissioner Charlotte Burrie and Commissioner Woodrow “Woody” Poitier in office.

All three were sworn into office at an induction ceremony that was held one week after the election. The mayor serves a three year term. City commissioners serve two-year terms.

The selection of a vice mayor was also made at the induction ceremony. Vice Mayor George Brummer was unanimously re-elected from among the six member city commission. The vice mayor serves a one year term.

In mid January, the City of Pompano Beach, in partnership with renowned golf course architect and World Golf Hall of Famer Greg Norman, celebrated the official opening of the redesign and renovation of the first Greg Norman Signature municipal golf course. Greg Norman not only attended the grand opening but hit the ceremonial first ball off the first tee.

The Pines Course has opened to rave reviews and this championship course will become a pillar for the community, providing a first class amenity for the residents and visitors of the City of Pompano Beach.

Greg Norman proudly proclaimed, "I was introduced to the sport of golf through public access golf courses in Australia, so this project and public golf are very special to me. I see this as the first of many municipal golf course design and renovation projects that I would like to be involved with," said Norman.

The newly renovated Pines Golf Course is one of two golf courses owned and operated by the City of Pompano Beach. Together with the Palms Golf Course, these two courses provide a true golf challenge for all skill levels.

CRA Progress Report

The Pompano Beach CRA has made some significant improvements over the last year and is looking forward to more exciting developments in both CRA districts over the coming months! Atlantic Boulevard and the Beach projects are now all complete!

The CRA is on the Move

East Atlantic Boulevard Project:

This project involved the reconstruction of E. Atlantic Boulevard from A1A to Pompano Beach Boulevard and included construction of wider sidewalks, new on-street parking and beautification of the streetscape along the corridor. The redevelopment along these areas is the first step in putting Pompano Beach on the map as a destination for locals, visitors & tourists alike!

$1 Million | Sidewalk Cafes - Pedestrian Friendly
Project Completed in 2012

Atlantic Boulevard Streetscape Project:

This project involved the reconstruction of Atlantic Boulevard from US 1/Federal Highway to A1A and undergrounding overhead facilities. Through a partnership with the Florida Department of Transportation (FDOT), the CRA built wider sidewalks and improved the landscaping. FDOT removed one travel lane from each side of the boulevard. This enabled the CRA to construct an enhanced pedestrian experience with outdoor seating and pedestrian-friendly features.

$3.3 Million | Partnership with FDOT | Narrow highway
New Landscape | Project Completed in 2013

Pompano Beach Boulevard Project:

The Pompano Beach Boulevard streetscape is now revitalized and the project is complete! If you haven't already ventured down to the beach, we invite you to come down and visit the NEW Pompano Beach! You will be amazed at the transformation with promenade-style sidewalks, outdoor exercise equipment to get you into shape, beautiful landscaping, kids' playground and of course, the beach! This project was underway in 2011 and was completed in early 2013.

$10 Million | Project Completed in 2013

Harbor Village Shoppes:

On your drive down Atlantic Boulevard, you will notice Harbor Village Shoppes are now complete! This project, located on Atlantic Boulevard between NE 26th and NE 28th Avenues, included the redesign of the building façade along with reconfiguration of the existing parking lot. In addition, most of the property owners participated in the incentive program with over $1 million of East CRA grant funding awarded and over $600k in private investment spent!

$1.6 Million | Project Completed in 2013

Hotel Bailey Project:

In the center of Old Pompano you will find the Hotel Bailey which was once the epicenter of a thriving downtown district in Pompano Beach. Proposed rendering of the Pompano Beach Pier Development

The Pompano Beach City Commission has approved an Ordinance authorizing City officials to enter into a Development Agreement with Pompano Pier Associates, LLC. The Development Agreement will pave the way to construct restaurants and retail establishments in the Pompano Fishing Pier parking lot which is geared to stimulate the City's economy and make Pompano Beach a destination for locals and tourists alike. The City Commission's decision is a clear indicator of the commitment made by our leaders to make Pompano Beach the place to be. The agenda approval marks the conclusion of a year-long process, which included public and private participation.

The proposed pier development includes approximately 40,000 square feet of retail, restaurant and beach-oriented uses. The project includes construction and renaming NE 2nd Street to Pier Street and a public plaza for events and activity. The City will lease to the developers a 6.5 acre area including the site formerly occupied by Fisherman's Wharf, which has been vacant since 2005.

The economic development benefits of the pier development are tremendous. The pier development will act as a catalyst to attract high end businesses to the City. The Community Redevelopment Agency and the City of Pompano Beach will receive additional tax revenues that can continue to provide funding for upgrades to the City's infrastructure. The pier development will provide many jobs in the proposed shops and restaurants. The developers chosen to develop the Pier; Tim Hernandez, Rick Caster and Kevin Rickard, have been investing in South Florida for many years. They are experienced at this type of redevelopment and have the ability to successfully complete this much needed redevelopment project.

Additionally, the pier development project will help brand the City as a family-friendly welcoming place. It will provide a destination for residents and visitors to eat, drink, and enjoy a beach-oriented environment as well as support the much needed hotel and tourism efforts.

A Sad Story of a Pet Reunited

By Jason Soldini
Animal Control Officer

Recently, as I came on duty at 6:30 AM, I checked the kennels at the police department and found a cute little Pomeranian dog waiting to be picked up. A deputy had picked it up during the night as he observed it running along Federal Highway. The dog did not have any tags on but I scanned it to see if there may be a microchip. Sure enough, there was! But I could not get my hopes up yet.

It is very common now for adopted pets to come with a microchip already implanted. Many new owners don't realize or forget they need to contact the microchip company to register it. This usually requires a small fee but it could be the only thing that gets your pet back home.

I contacted the microchip company and there was owner information on file. This is great news! Then the representative told me that a lost report had been filed for this dog about one year earlier.

When I contacted the owner, she was very surprised to hear the news. She had in fact lost the dog a year earlier when it escaped the yard and never returned. They had checked all over, filed lost reports, posted flyers and checked back regularly with the shelter to see if anyone had brought it in or reported it found. There was nothing and as time went on, they gave up.

It was a Sunday morning and I brought the dog back home shortly after contacting the owner. The family was glad to have their dog back. I went away satisfied at the opportunity to play a part in the happy reunion yet wondering who may have had this dog for the past year.

It wasn't much later that I received a call from a frantic woman who had lost her little Pomeranian the night before in the same area. I assured her that I had picked the dog up and it was safe. Relief swept over her but it would be short lived. I asked when she got the dog. She explained that she had found it running near Federal Highway one night about a year ago when she was returning home from work. She picked it up and took it home. I asked if she ever reported finding it to anyone or attempted to have a veterinarian scan it for a microchip. She said no and I could hear the panic returning to her voice as it became obvious why I would ask such questions. I informed her that the dog was lost by its owner a year ago and the family searched relentlessly for it. I told her how the dog had a microchip and was now returned to its rightful owner. Sobbing set in as she realized the dog she had made a part of her family for the last year was not coming home. She told me how she lovingly groomed and even cooked for the dog. I could not even understand her anymore through the uncontrollable sobbing. It was a very sad yet preventable situation.

I informed the real owner of the dog of the circumstances and surprisingly there were no hard feelings. She was glad to have her dog back and actually felt sad for the woman who had kept it and the loss she was experiencing. Fortunately, the dog owner did not want to press any charges. A found animal is very likely someone's pet and the finder has a responsibility to make a reasonable attempt to locate the owner. It's okay for the finder to hold onto the animal but efforts need to be made to locate the owner which at a minimum includes a call to animal control to let them know you have found an animal. The animal shelter is probably the first place an owner will look for their lost pet so it's important they know who has it. Our City Ordinance provides for a $500 fine for those who find and keep an animal without reporting it to animal control and publishing it in a local publication like a newspaper or an online bulletin board like Craigslist.

If you find a pet and plan to hold onto it rather than have it picked up by animal control, then be sure to do the following:

- Report it to our City Animal Control Division at 954.786.4027
- Report it to the County Animal Shelter located in the City at 954.359.1313 and press #9266 to connect to the front desk during operating hours
- Take a walk with the dog in the area you found it. Sometimes the owner is out driving around looking for it.
- Go to a veterinarian office or the animal shelter to have it scanned for a microchip.
- Make a sign similar to what would be used for a yard sale that states the animal found and a phone number to call. Place it in front of your home near the swale area for a day or two after finding the animal.
- Keep an eye out for “LOST” pet flyers taped to light poles and street signs.
- Place a “Found” ad in the local newspaper (which are often offered for free) or an online bulletin board. Be brief in your description. For example “small tan dog found near NE 11th Ave & Atlantic Blvd”. Let any caller give you a more detailed description of the pet, such as sex, breed or special markings, so you can confirm it is actually the owner.

Too many people are afraid to call animal control out of fear the animal will be taken and put to sleep. On the contrary, our Animal Control Division is here to help anyone from the community that is attempting to reunite a lost pet and/or provide it a good home.

PostWAR POMPANO

By Dan Hobby
Pompano Beach
Historical Society

Following the end of World War II, Pompano was still very much a small agricultural town, little changed since 1940. Most of its not quite 5,000 residents lived in a fairly compact area generally bounded on the south by Ocean Drive (it would later be renamed Atlantic Boulevard, on the east by NE 15th Avenue, on the north by NE 10th and NW 12th Avenues and on the west by NW 10th Avenue. The population was fairly evenly split between African-Americans who lived on the west side of town, and whites who, with a few exceptions, lived on the east side.

During the 1945-46 school year, there were a total of 1,166 students in Pompano schools. Segregation was the law of the land, and white students went to Pompano Elementary, Pompano Junior High School and Pompano High School, where they proudly called themselves “Beanpickers.” Black students attended the Pompano Colored School or a small school in the federal migrant housing project west of town. There was not a high school for black students; In order to earn a high school diploma, blacks had to attend Fort Lauderdale’s Dillard High School, although some parents sent their children to live with relatives in Miami, where they attended Booker T. Washington High School. A few Pompano youths were sent to black high schools even farther away.

Throughout the 1940s and early 1950s, there were more black students enrolled in Pompano Beach's segregated public schools than there were white students -- often by a significant amount. In the 1946-47 school year, for instance, white enrollment was 476 while there were 854 black students. In the 1950-51 school year the total enrollment included 700 whites and 997 blacks. It was not until the 1955-56 school year that white enrollment topped that of blacks.

Dixie Highway was the main north-south thoroughfare. The Florida East Coast Railway tracks ran along the east side of the road. On the west side were a number of businesses, including an automobile dealership, restaurants and service stations. Pompano's library, established in 1940, was housed in donated space within the Kester Building on the west side of Dixie Highway just south of Hammondville Road. To the east, Federal Highway ran through largely undeveloped countryside. On the northwest corner of Ocean Drive and Federal Highway sat McNab's Texaco station. Across Ocean Drive, on the southwest corner, was William's Gulf station and the Greyhound bus stop. The McNab Standard Oil station was on the southeast corner (the McNabs lived a couple blocks east). The only corner that didn't have a gas station was the northeast -- it had a wooden juice stand called The Orange Bowl. There were a few tourist courts, restaurants and lounges scattered along Federal Highway, but these were, at best, humble establishments.

The Pinehurst Hotel (owned by the McNab family) was located on Ocean Drive, just east of Federal Highway but then there was almost nothing until the swing span bridge over the Intracoastal Waterway was crossed. The beach area had seen some recent development -- in fact, the area had incorporated as a separate town in 1946. The following year, Pompano merged with the new town and became Pompano Beach.

North along A1A were dozens of Kester Cottages (small wood-frame tourist accommodations), and farther north the Wahoo Lodge. Originally constructed in the 1920s, it had been sold to Dr. Earl Carlson and now housed a school for children with cerebral palsy and other neuro-muscular ailments. South of the Pompano Casino, a number of private residences and beachfront apartments recently had been built.

Traveling west on Ocean Drive from the beach toward Pompano, one would pass an area call "no man's land," a reference to the under-populated land between the Intracoastal and about NE 15th Avenue. Farther east, a number of Kester Cottages lined Ocean Drive, then other residences and a few businesses. Just before reaching NE 1st Avenue, where Ocean Drive ended, the Masonic Lodge sat on the south of Ocean Drive. Located within this building was the Pompano's Post Office and City Hall. North on 1st Avenue led to the downtown, which had seen no real change during the war years. NE 1st Street and Flagler Avenue were the roads on which most of the businesses were located and where most residents shopped. Packing sheds were still located along the east side of the railroad tracks.

Hammondville Road was the only route west. Along it, just west of Dixie Highway, was an extension of the business district with a variety of stores, bars and small restaurants. Farther west was the Pompano State Farmers Market and then almost nothing until State Road 7 and the Hammondville farming settlement near today's Margate.

Most of Pompano's population attended Sunday services at either a Baptist or Methodist Church. There were still no formal churches in Pompano for Catholics, Presbyterians, Episcopalians or Lutherans, and no synagogue.

People still shopped at stores where they knew the owner, still made their living off agriculture or serving those who did, and were usually not upset if neighbors kept horses or chickens in their yards. There was no home mail delivery; everyone picked up their letters and parcels at the Post Office. Pompano's people were, in many cases, slow to accept strangers unless they were vouched for by an existing friend or relative, and if asked, the overwhelming majority of locals would say they were Southerners.

The tight-knit farming community of Pompano was not viewed as particularly welcoming by the new residents who came in the post-World War II period. One recently-arrived resident was quoted as saying, "You had to be very careful. A derogatory remark made to one old townier about someone might backfire. That someone might be a cousin and before you know it 39 relatives were not talking to you."

Within a few years, however, much of this would change as the great post-war migration of northerners to Florida would alter the town's make-up economics and lifestyles in ways that, in 1946, were unimaginable.

C } City of Pompano Beach Fire Lieutenant Wins Nicholas Rosecrans Award

- City of Pompano Beach Fire Rescue Lieutenant/Paramedic Jorge Rossi is the 2013 recipient of the Nicholas Rosecrans Award. The award is presented annually at the EMS Today Conference, sponsored by JEMS, Laerdal and EPIC Medics to honor innovation and excellence in EMS-based injury prevention programs. The Nicholas Rosecrans Award recognizes those extraordinary individuals/agencies who, not only respond to injuries, but also have taken the extra steps to keep them from happening in the first place.

Pompano Beach Fire Rescue Lieutenant/Paramedic Jorge Rossi won the award for a research project submitted to the Executive Fire Officer Program at the National Fire Academy. The applied research project is entitled, "No Child Locked Inside: Creating Awareness About the Dangers of Leaving Children in Hot Vehicles." In the 45-page research paper, Lt. Rossi writes that since 1998, 558 children across the United States have died of hyperthermia from being left unattended inside of vehicles. Florida has experienced 58 of those deaths, which is the most in the U.S. per capita.

After several months of research, and random surveys, what began as an applied research project, has evolved into a well-received awareness program.

SMOKE KILLS

*By Inspector Kayle Washington
Pompano Beach Fire Rescue*

Every day Americans experience the horror of fire. But most people don't understand fire. Each year more than 3,500 Americans die and approximately 18,300 are injured in fires resulting from smoke and burns.

Smoke inhalation is the primary cause of death in victims of residential fires. Smoke inhalation injury refers to injury due to inhalation or exposure to hot gaseous products of combustion. This can cause serious respiratory complications.

It is estimated that 50-80% of fire deaths are the result of smoke inhalation injuries, including burns to the respiratory system. The hot smoke injures or kills by a combination of thermal damage, poisoning and pulmonary irritation and swelling, caused by carbon monoxide, cyanide and other combustion products.

Pompano Fire Rescue has responded to 124 structure fires from October 2011 to October 2012. Pompano Beach Fire Rescue transported approximately 24 people due to smoke inhalation and burn injuries. In recent months, Fire Rescue has responded to several residential fires resulting in injuries. The United States Fire Administration believes that fire deaths can be reduced by teaching people the basic facts about fire. Following are some facts that explain the particular characteristics of fire.

Smoke Kills

Fire is FAST! There is little time.

In less than 30 seconds a small flame can get completely out of control and turn into a major fire. It only takes minutes for thick smoke to fill a house.

Fire is HOT! Heat is more threatening than flames.

A fire's heat alone can kill. Room temperature in a fire can be 100 degrees at floor level and rise to 600 at eye level.

Fire is DARK! Fire isn't bright, its pitch black.

Fire starts bright, but quickly produces black smoke and complete darkness. If you wake up to a fire you may be blinded and unable to find your way around your home.

Fire is DEADLY! Smoke and toxic gases kill more people than flames do. Fire uses up the oxygen you need and produces smoke and poisonous gases that kill. Breathing even small amounts of smoke and toxic gases can make you drowsy, disoriented and short of breath.

Fire Safety Tips:

- In the event of a fire, remember time is the biggest enemy and every second counts!
- Escape first then call for help.
- Having a working smoke alarm dramatically increases your chances of surviving a fire.
- Practice a home escape plan frequently with your family.

Police Chief John Hale

Fire Rescue Chief Harry Small

The CHANGING of the Guard

By Sandra King,
Public Communications Director

There will be a changing of the guard in Pompano Beach as Police Chief William Knowles and Fire Chief Harry Small are leaving the City. Chief William Knowles has been promoted by BSO Sheriff Scott Israel to Lt. Colonel. Major John Hale has been named chief for the Pompano Beach District. After 35 years of service, Fire Chief Harry Small will be retiring in May.

Chief Hale began his law enforcement career with the Pompano Beach Police Department in 1987, serving as a patrol officer, criminal investigations detective, patrol sergeant and internal affairs supervisor. Major Hale was promoted to the rank of lieutenant in 2000 and captain in 2003. In February 2004, Major Hale was named chief of the Cooper City district.

Chief Hale holds both Associate of Science and Bachelor of Science degrees in Criminal Justice Management from the John Jay College of Criminal Justice in New York. He is a graduate of Florida Atlantic University's Criminal Justice Executive Leadership Program as well as the 234th session of the prestigious FBI National Academy in Quantico, Virginia.

Harry L. Small is a 35-year veteran of Pompano Beach Fire Rescue who rose through the ranks to the position of Fire Chief in 2001. Chief Small has spent his entire career developing or enhancing fire department programs and services. Among these are Emergency Medical Services, the Community Emergency Response Team (CERT) Program, the Fire Explorer program, and city-wide hurricane preparedness. To date, Pompano Beach's CERT program has taught and graduated over 1,200 residents. In addition to his regular duties, Chief Small was also the Emergency Management Director for the City of Pompano Beach from 1995 to 2009.

Chief Small holds an Associates Degree in Fire Science from Broward Community College, a Bachelor's Degree in Management from Barry University, and a Master's Degree in Business Administration (MBA) from Florida Atlantic University.

A replacement for Chief Small has not yet been named.

Cultural Arts Center UPDATE

Something wonderful is about to happen!

Proposed rendering of the Cultural Center

A Pompano Beach Cultural Arts Master Plan is being created to identify future programming and management for four cultural facilities within the City: the new Cultural Center at the Civic Campus near City Hall, the restored Hotel Bailey in the Old Pompano commercial district, the historic Ali Building on Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Blvd., and the existing 2900-seat Pompano Beach Amphitheater.

The plan envisions that Pompano Beach will become a cultural arts destination in north Broward County, featuring innovative arts programming including, theater, dance, music, the visual arts, public art, history, and historic preservation. The unique character of the Pompano Beach program will be enhanced through Digital Media support and cultural education opportunities in all art disciplines.

Master planning activities will include developing comprehensive management and staffing plans, fund-raising analysis and recommendations for a new non-profit organization to assist in raising money for and implementing the major new arts program.

The plan will be brought forward for approval by the Pompano Beach City Commission later in the year.

The 2013 Pompano Proud WOW Award for business beautification goes to Laura and Daniel Porter, owners and operation managers of Florida Drawbridge located at 1901 East Atlantic Boulevard. This mother and son team started their business here in January of 2009.

This area caught Laura's eye and being an avid gardener, she planted Florida friendly scrubs and flowers to brighten up the side yard. The building was painted, new awnings installed and a stunning photo of a raised drawbridge spans across the 5 front windows. A decorative fountain and purple bougainvillea greet you at the front door.

For a business to win the WOW Award, the overall appearance must give an outstanding lift to the neighborhood.

The City of Pompano Beach Utilities is proud to have the brand new Greg Norman Signature Golf Course as a customer of our OASIS program. What's not new however is that the golf course is using the City's OASIS Reuse water. The City has been irrigating its golf courses with reuse since 1989. Over 10 billion gallons have been used on the golf courses. The benefits of irrigating with reuse water are plentiful: the grass is visibly greener and needs less fertilizer, reuse water costs less, and saves drinking water. Reuse is a green and environmentally friendly resource. We are proud to partner with the Greg Norman Signature Golf Course in using purple to keep our beautiful new greens "green." For more information on the City's Reuse Program, please visit our website at: iCanWater.com

Pompano Beach Selected For U.S. EPA ASSISTANCE On Neighborhood Planning For Aging

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has announced that Pompano Beach is among 43 communities in 27 states that will receive technical assistance to pursue sustainable growth that encourages local economic development while safeguarding health and the environment. EPA staff and national experts conducted a workshop in April that focused on the Neighborhood Planning for Healthy Aging tool. The City of Pompano Beach requested assistance to explore the role of supportive neighborhood design in creating great places for our aging residents.

This tool helps communities understand the inter-related nature of the built environment related to creating neighborhoods where residents can comfortably age in peace. This is accomplished by considering housing, accessibility, transportation, safety and security. Communities receiving this assistance will explore these concepts through a GIS analysis of location conditions and a community assessment. Using this input, the EPA team will develop a series of strategies and next steps that each community can consider to improve local conditions to support aging.

To date, EPA's assistance through the Building Blocks program has reached 141 communities. EPA selected this year's recipients from 121 applicants through a competitive process in consultation with the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and the U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT). Together, the three agencies form the federal Partnership for Sustainable Communities, which coordinate investments in housing, transportation, and environmental protection to get better results for communities and use taxpayer money more efficiently.

Planning personnel in the City of Pompano Beach have been working arduously towards completing an architectural survey of historic properties in a portion of the City's urban core. The project area is bounded by I-95 to the west, NW 13th Street to the north, NE 11th Avenue to the east and SW 2nd Street to the south.

The purpose of the historic sites survey is to identify and record buildings and structures in Pompano Beach over 50 years old and to determine the eligibility of these properties for listing on the Local Register of Historic Places. These efforts will help to protect valuable historic structures within the City's historic core.

Work on the survey began in the Fall of 2012 and will conclude this summer. Upon completion, a book detailing all of the structures surveyed will be available to download for free on the City's website. The information will also be added to the Florida Master Site Files, which is the State of Florida's official inventory of historical and cultural resources. The completed document will be a great asset to the community as it will chronicle important aspects of the City's architectural history.

If you have any questions about the Pompano Beach Historic Sites Survey or historic preservation in general, please call 954.786.7921.

Flood Damage Protect Your Home and Property

This article is required by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (F.E.M.A.) to satisfy provisions in the Community Rating System (C.R.S.) for reduced costs for flood insurance. The following is offered to Pompano Beach residents to help prevent and minimize the impact on lives and property caused by floodwaters.

Flood Hazard Map

The City's Engineering Department has enhanced FEMA's Flood Criteria Map identifying flood zones for all properties in the city. The map depicts the flood hazard associated with any parcel in the City. The map is located in the Building Inspections Division at City Hall and is available in electronic GIS format.

Flood Risk

Although we have been relatively fortunate for many years, the recent flooding on Halloween 2011 reminds us of the possibility of a flooding event without a major storm or hurricane.

Flood Warning System

The City of Pompano Beach, in coordination with Broward County, has a warning system to notify residents of impending flood danger. Warnings will be transmitted on public address systems, television, radio, telephone and on a door-to-door basis. Listen for instructions during times of flood risk.

Flood Safety

These are precautionary steps to consider before possible flooding:

- Listen to radio or television for warnings.
- Obey warning and evacuation instructions from disaster officials.
- Know your evacuation zone and route.
- Take your own essentials (food, toiletries, clothes, blankets, etc.).
- Turn off the electricity and gas before leaving your home.
- Bring a battery-operated flashlight.
- Be careful at all times, particularly at night, and try to remain calm.

Flood Insurance

Most homeowners' insurance policies do not cover property losses due to flood waters. To insure your property for flood damage, you need a flood insurance policy. If you do not have valid flood insurance, contact an agent immediately. Property owners can insure property; renters can insure possessions. The City of Pompano Beach participates in the National Flood Insurance Program (N.F.I.P.) to provide city residents with the initial qualification to purchase flood insurance. We applied to F.E.M.A. for participation in the C.R.S. program to enable our residents to qualify for lower flood insurance premiums.

Property Protection

There are ways to minimize property losses from flood damage, including:

- Move furniture and other household valuables to rooms or spaces in the upper story of a two-story dwelling or a location higher than the regular floor elevation in a single story home.
- Place sandbags in strategic places around your property prior to flood status. When sandbags are placed correctly at proper locations, they can slow up and divert flood waters.
- Upgrading your property can include building flood walls, elevating a structure or raising the floor.

Development Permits

All development (new construction, additions, renovations, alterations to properties, etc.) in the City of Pompano Beach require a construction permit. The N.F.I.P. and the Florida Building Code require the entire building to conform to the requirements for a new building when building repairs or alterations exceed 50 percent of the building's market value. All applicable building permit applications must conform to this requirement when submitted to the Building Inspections Division. The requirement may also apply if a building is substantially damaged due to flooding.

Stormwater Management

Stormwater is managed through a system of pipes and drainage canals maintained regularly by our Public Works and Utilities Departments. The Broward County Office of Environmental Services and South Florida Water Management District. Constant water flow through these canals, especially during heavy storms, is essential to flood prevention in the City. City and state laws prohibit dumping trash in waterways. Report violators to Public Works Department at 954-786-4060.

Natural Habitat

State regulations protect those natural areas that help to reduce the risks associated with flooding. Along the beach, no new structures are permitted seaward of the Coastal Construction Line without permission. Other restrictions protect some wetland areas from development.

Rate Reductions

On June 11th, 1993, F.E.M.A. awarded the City with a Class 9 rating in the C.R.S. This rating earned Pompano Beach residents a five percent discount on flood insurance premiums. In September 1994, the City received official notification that Pompano Beach residents are eligible for an additional five percent discount, or ten percent total, on flood insurance based on the City complying with the requirements for a Class 8 rating in the C.R.S. In July 2012, F.E.M.A. awarded the City a class 7 rating so flood insurance policy holders in special flood hazard areas in the City will now receive a 15% discount on their insurance premiums.

Additional Information

We urge City residents to contact or visit the Building Inspections Division to determine the flood zone and flood elevation for their property. The library at the Building Inspections Division is available for your reference. Pompano Beach City Hall is at 100 West Atlantic Boulevard, Pompano Beach, Florida. The Pompano Beach Branch of the Broward County Library, located at 1213 East Atlantic Boulevard, has information on flood insurance, flood protection and flood plain management.
